TAWA COLLEGE COMMUNITY EDUCATION CLASSES NEXT WEEK

New classes start the week beginning 5 August. Although many classes start this week, others will be starting throughout the term.

Defensive Driving and Advance Defensive Driving Courses

Tawa College Community Education has been offering Defensive Driving classes since its inception. We have been fortunate to have for many years Peter Sheppard as the tutor of these classes. Peter is the author of the course and although he usually trains the trainers he also likes to keep in touch with what teenagers are thinking. Peter is looked upon as one of NZ's leading professional specialists in driver education and transport safety management. (You may have seen him on TV talking about road safety).

Peter's work in fleet safety management, fuel efficiency and driver education has involved developing new driver education initiatives and incentive programmes for young drivers, co-authoring a "world first" research project (in conjunction with Waikato University) aimed at adolescent drivers' frontal lobe development.

Peter has presented a range of papers both locally and internationally on adult driver education, driver crash-risk profiling and crash causation. Peter will be teaching two Defensive Driving and Advanced Defensive Driving Courses this term. He also teaches Parents as Driving Coaches, and Staying Safe for Senior Drivers Courses.

Working with Tawa Community Centre

Exercise classes are held during the day at the Tawa and Linden Community Centres. These classes are particularly popular for retired people and those who are working part-time. Easy Tai Chi on a Tuesday morning has been popular for the older age groups, and there are also Pilates classes on Wednesday and Friday morning.

Other classes that members of the community would like to have run during the day can also be offered. Please contact us if you have ideas.
