A BARBECUE IN YOUR STREET IN MARCH? FIND OUT HOW .....

"A very easy to run event, with many benefits for the whole street. Plans are under way to do it again."

"It was a good excuse to catch up with existing neighbours and to meet the new families who have recently made [our street] their home."

"We met people we hadn't before ... Kids now know more kids to play with."

"Some people knew each other well, but getting together was beneficial for those of us who leave the neighbourhood each day to go to work."

"We are all keen to keep the neighbourly spirit alive and we heard repeatedly "LET'S DO THIS AGAIN!"'

This is some of the feedback from last year's Neighbours' Day events in Tawa.

WE ARE DOING IT AGAIN! Make sure YOU join in! We're hoping to see 75 barbecues or afternoon teas being held in the streets of Tawa this coming March.

• It's really quite simple organising a barbecue in your street. We're getting together soon to throw around a few ideas and to provide a few tips. Some of those who ran a barbecue in their own street will be sharing the secrets of their success. To find out more, YOU ARE INVITED to join us at the Tawa Community Centre late Sunday afternoon, 17 February, at 4.30pm. We promise to be finished by 6pm. Call Malcolm on 232 5030 with any queries.

TAWA STATION REBUILD

The following was received from the Greater Wellington Regional Council on 29 January:

The Christmas block on the North Island Main Trunk (NIMT) line saw the beginning of construction work at Tawa station. Signalling equipment was successfully relocated to a new location on the existing platform and demolition of the Tawa station building was completed in just one day. Other works were carried out such as under track crossings installed for storm and waste water pipes, removal of the platform surface and trenching for both new lighting ducts and platform storm water drainage.

Protective scaffolding was also installed to protect construction workers and to allow the site continued operation during normal train operations.

Current works now include excavations for the new building foundations, CCTV ducts for the new security system and foundations ready to receive the new light columns when ready to be installed. Over the next few weeks preparation works will continue with the pouring of the slab foundation for the building and platform strengthening works.

Thanks to David Parsons (first three) and Bruce Murray for the photos.

VIDEO OF MURAL BEING PAINTED

You will be aware of the mural that was painted on the wooden fence alongside the skatepark at the back of the Tawa Pool complex in November. There is now a link to the project on the Council's City Arts website, including a timelapse film. Have a look at: <http://www.wellington.govt.nz/services/arts/publicart/temporarystreet.html>.

TAWA RECIPIENTS OF QUEEN'S SERVICE MEDALS

Congratulations to two Tawa recipients of Queen's Service Medals in the New Year honours list.

Quoting directly from the "Stuff" website at <http://www.stuff.co.nz/dominion-post/news/local-papers/kapi-mana-news/8150210/Porirua-and-Tawa-residents-receive-New-Year-honours>:

"Also receiving QSMs were Shona Murray and Graham Goss, both from Tawa. Mrs Murray, who received the honour for services to education and music, taught at Tawa College from 1977 to 2011 and established the suburb as a strong centre of music, particularly choir. She was the driving force behind the Tawa Schools and Community festivals, held since 1979.

Mr Goss, meanwhile, was involved with the establishment of the New Zealand Federation of Brevet Clubs. The clubs provide fellowship and welfare for those who served in air crew and their dependants after World War II. He was also involved with the fundraising and establishment of museums at the Ohakea and Wigram bases."

TAWA RUNNER COMPETING IN JAPAN

Olympic Harrier runner and Tawa resident, Michelle Van Looy, is off to Japan shortly to compete in a marathon.

The WCC website at <http://www.wellington.govt.nz/about/international/sistercities/senshu.html> reads:

"Through Wellington's sister-city link with Sakai, every year a Wellington marathon runner can take part in the Senshu International City Marathon in Japan. Sakai is one of the host cities of this major running event.

In mid October each year, Wellington City Council and the Wellington Sakai Association ask for entries from marathon runners to represent the capital in the marathon the following February. In 2013, we are looking for two marathon runners to represent Wellington."

Michelle Van Looy was lucky enough to be selected in the draw. She is off to Japan shortly and will let us know how she gets on. In the meantime she tells us "It's been quite tough training for a winter marathon in blazing sunshine although it was only 10 degrees at 6.15am today [Tuesday]."

All the best to Michelle!

UNWANTED FRUIT?

A branch of Community Fruit Harvesting was established in Tawa in September 2011. Those involved are now on the search for fruit trees, abundant with fruit that is either unpicked or unwanted, for volunteers to collect and redistribute to food banks and other charity partners. Community Fruit Harvesting works with KCA (Kiwi Community Assistance) based in Tawa, as well as Kaibosh Food Rescue in Wellington.

They will also help the owners of trees who are unable to pick the fruit themselves by giving them some back. Another benefit is that it helps to keep gardens clear of rotting fruit.

Local volunteers are being sought to assist with picking fruit and to make jams/preserves for food parcels.

Email pickfruitnthwellington@gmail.com or call Julie on 027 240 6606.

GOOD NEIGHBOURS IN MEXTED TERRACE

From Ossie Fountain, Joint Street Coordinator in Mexted Terrace:

"I have been especially encouraged by our Neighbourhood Support group activities in our Mexted Terrace group. We've had several valuable meetings, mainly around the theme of earthquake preparedness. We were glad that our Deputy Coordinator was able to attend the local Emergency Preparedness meeting (in October) when I could not and brought back material we were able to share with our group. Thank you for alerting us to that.

We have had two main occasions to invite the whole street to get together - the Neighbours' Weekend when we held a picnic, and just recently, Tui Park Kindergarten opened their doors to us for a pre-Christmas barbecue. We have had minor and major crises among our street's families this [past] year and it has been good to be able to support people in these situations in some small way."

MAILBOX BACK OUTSIDE THE SUPERMARKET

This photo was taken on 22 January, a few days after the writer first spotted the mailbox back in place. We had been told it was coming back, and at one stage we thought it would be reinstated before Christmas. It wasn't, but it's there now.

Thanks to New World management and Cr Ngaire Best who both played a part in seeing it happen. So make sure you use it!

It's helpful to get feedback on articles in this newsletter. Amongst other things, it means that people are reading what's been written!

I've had a number of comments over time in response to my musings about Abby, the family dog. She's the chocolate labrador we procured just over a year ago, 9½ weeks old at the time. My descriptions of her 'antics' often strike a chord with those in a similar situation, or remind others of how it used to be for them before their dog finally grew out of that somewhat stressful puppy stage - which at times appears to be never-ending!

The following email came my way just before Christmas: "I love hearing about Abby! Our cavoodle Max will be 1 in January, and we got him at the end of March! He is just adorable, but so mischievous! I enjoy hearing Abby stories because it gives me hope for Max! He too loves to sneak things and chew them as much as he can before being caught. I'm now realising our Mad Max is not a bad dog, just a normal puppy! They really are such wonderful family members, and as I am now on holiday, I can guard my belongings!"

Like Max, Abby still has a long way to go.

"No eating screws. They're bad for you." That was my daughter's admonition as she extracted the said item from inside the canine mouth a couple of days back. We're currently undergoing kitchen renovations which means there are a number of loose items about the place, items that for whatever reason seem irresistible to a young dog. I retrieved a nail from her mouth a short while later.

We usually spot it when she's chewing on a foreign object. It can be a little like emptying a money box. We tip her head towards the floor, pry apart her jaws and out tumbles a coin or two. But who knows what happens to those objects that disappear without our being aware? One can only speculate.

She found a partly eaten plum the other day, from where I have no idea (see bottom photo). It's a well-known fact that a labrador never passes by the opportunity of food. In this case she obviously didn't particularly like the taste because she merely nibbled at it, toying with it for quite some time - like a cat does with a mouse - before it finally went down the hatch.

It's been a good summer for taking her to the beach at Whitireia Park, the river at Kaitoke and the stream at Willowbank. We were at the latter just yesterday, as were at least four other dogs in the area specifically earmarked for their kind. Chasing each other around was a great way to see them exercise, racing in and out of the water, just about bowing their owners at times. Not a good place to be for anyone who doesn't like dogs! They certainly know how to enjoy life and have a knack of adding that something extra to those privileged enough to be their 'masters'.

P.S. Just after I completed the above, I stepped into the lounge (the doors of which I thought I had shut a short while ago for no other reason than to keep Abby out) and found myself extracting a packet of rubber tap washers she was in the process of decimating. And so it goes on ....
